GO OUT ON STRIKE.

Proposition to Tie Up Vehicle Traffic in New York is Threatened.

EXPRESS COMPANIES SUFFER

Even With the Help of All the Police Reserves They Could Move But 400 Wagons Today—Weighers, Checkers and Porters Join Ranks.

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The calling out of 100,000 union teamsters, chauffeurs and helpers in New York City today, and the ordering of a nationwide strike of all express drivers and helpers is threatened today as a result of the express drivers' strike in this city. The question of calling a sympathetic strike of all unions affiliated with the International Teamsters' Union will be decided at a meeting of the Executive Committee tonight. Should it be ordered the union officials declare that practically all vehicle traffic in New York will at once cease.

The International body has already been notified by the dry goods drivers' union, whose men handle the 1,200 wagons owned by the wholesale dry goods men of the city, that they are ready to go out at once. Other unions affiliated with the International body are expected to express the same attitude at tonight's meeting. The affiliated union, with a total membership of nearly 100,000, include the drivers of practically all the merchandise transporting wagons in the city, thousands of city men, automobile chauffeurs and drivers generally. Calling them out, the union officials declare, will completely paralyze the business of the city.

The second proposition of calling a nationwide strike of all express drivers and helpers is to be postponed for a few days to permit an organization of the men in the larger cities. Delegates for this purpose have been sent out and word was received today at strike headquarters that complete organizations have been effected at Newark, N. J., Philadelphia and Boston. In anticipation of ordering a nationwide strike the International Brotherhood of Teamsters today prepared a new wage scale for the express drivers that is to be demanded in all the larger cities. It calls for a monthly wage to route drivers of $80; transfer and schedule men, $70; single wagon drivers, $65; chauffeurs, $80; flat helpers, $50, and other helpers, $50; together with an eleven hour work day, the elimination of Sunday work as much as possible and several minor concessions.

In continuation of the fight in New York the express drivers today appointed a committee to confer with Health Commissioner Lederer on the disposition of perishable goods tied up by the strike. The union men allege that over 100 express cars of perishable food are being held up in the express companies' cars in the yards at New York and they will ask the Health Commission to decide whether foodstuffs of this nature shall be allowed to go to the public for consumption after it has been delayed in delivery for days.

A similar committee was also appointed to protest to Mayor Gaynor against the use of city policemen on express wagons, several of whom they declare have actually gone so far as to drive the wagons and trucks.

The ranks of the strikers were today augmented by about 5,000 men by the going out of all express platform men including the weighers, checkers and porters. So effective has been the threat that the express companies, with the protection of all the police of the city including the full reserve list, were able to move only 400 wagons today, the usual number being about 1,200. While no general rioting occurred today, individual clashes between the strikers, strikebreakers and police were frequent and several arrests resulted.

Three hundred strike breakers arrived from Baltimore today. Under guard of twenty mounted policemen they were escorted to the Adams Express Company's stables and put to work immediately.

B. FRANK SMITH ON STAND ASKING FOR A GUARDIAN.

The Murderer of His Father and Brother-in-Law Says That He Is Now a Sane Man.

WOULD LIKE TO BE FREE

Again and Intimates That He Would Be a Different Man—Prisoner Different in Appearance Than During His Trial For Murder.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Nov. 1.—Frank Smith was on the stand this morning in the petition of his wife for the appointment of a guardian. Smith appeared very much different than at the time of the trial. He has grown a mustache and his appearance is now the same as it was at the time the murders were committed. A set of false teeth has added to the plumpness of his face and another style of collar and a necktie have taken away the bare look of his dress.

Smith has lost the wild and vacant stare that marked his appearance at his trial for the murder of his father and brother-in-law. He was alert and very much interested in the framing of his answers to questions asked him by Attorney John Logan and George Patterson who represented Mrs. Louise Moser, wife of one of the men Frank Smith murdered.

Smith told the court he believed he is now sane. In fact he stated that he believed he was always a sane man, except on the night on which he killed his father and brother-in-law. He said he could remember all important events in his life except those on the night of the tragedy that will send him to the mad house.

Smith put much emphasis on what he would do now should he regain his liberty and throughout his testimony there was an implied appeal that his freedom might, some time again be restored to him.

Smith at no time during his examination faltered in answering the questions of his own attorneys or those of Mrs. Moser. He was still on the stand at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Smith explained the theory of his attorneys that he was insane because he purchased so much of the microbe killer medicine by stating that he had been as much as a cent for the medicine in this community. Before leaving the stand he refused to go on record as to whether he agreed with what the physicians said about him at the trial. Attorney George Patterson asked him if he hadn't just handed them that sort of a story to get them on the stand in his favor. Smith laughed, hung his head and said he refused to answer. He admitted that he understood a part of the question Patterson had asked Dr. White before Smith's attempted assault on the Assistant District Attorney, but refused to say that he knew what he was doing when he grabbed the bottle and waved it over his head.

In his own opinion, Smith said, he had been mentally sound for the last 10 years and was at present in a fit condition to be liberated. He added that if he should gain his liberty, he would not reside in Geauga township or any other part of Fayette county, though he did not think he would sell his property.

Has Not Sold Farm. Mr. John Robinson stated today that they had not sold their property to Peter Hiebert of Crossland station. The deal was on but was not closed.

AT AVIATION MEET.

John H. Morgan led in this "contest" with four wrecked airplanes to his credit. Graham-White was second with a Farman airplane and a biplane for horsepower badly damaged. The following aviators each had one machine wrecked: Brookings, Bradley, Shirley, Frisbie, Lehman, Harmon and Orville Wright.

United Press Telegram. NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Four airplane records were smashed at the second international aviation meet which concluded in a snarl that today threatens to make American "sportsmanship" a by-word in Europe. The resignation of J. Armstrong Drexel of Philadelphia from the Aero Club of America because of what he termed "juggling of the rules" to prevent "Graham-White" from winning the $10,000 State of Liberty contest, meets with the approval of most of the aviators who participated in the meet.

Drexel, a millionaire sportsman, sacrificed time and money to return to his native land and patriotically endeavor to win laurels for America. But he was embittered when he saw rules made apparently on the spur of the moment that debared foreigners from wresting the big prize from John H. Morgan. Drexel attacked his blame to Morgan. On the other hand, an aviator during the Little America who like himself sacrificed much to fight for his country in the air.

Graham-White made himself very unpopular during the meeting, but this did not excuse the aviation committee. It is contended, for framing rules that barred him from defeating Morgan. The Englishman contends today that he should have been allowed to make another trial for the big prize on Monday, the committee having ruled that Monday would be a postponed day of the regular meet. Sunday after Morgan had beaten Graham-White, the judges ruled that the official meet came to a close that night and that Monday was a special day and no flights for the regular prizes would count if made after Sunday. It was Sunday when the ruling was made.

YEANDLE SAVED
NAN PATTERSON

But His Offer to "Hang" Jury for Rosenheimer Made Trouble.

$500 WAS CURRENT PRICE

Honesty of Attorney James W. Osborne Results in Exposure Which May Turn Light on New York's Criminal Methods.

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Charged with soliciting and accepting a bribe of $500 to "hang" the jury trying Edward T. Rosenheimer, the millionaire, for the alleged murder of Miss Grace Gough by running her down in his automobile, George W. Yeandle, an architect, selected as juror No. 7, was arrested today.

In default of $10,000 bail he was remanded to the Tombs for examination Thursday. Yeandle was a juror in the trial of Nan Patterson, the beauty of the Florida sextette when the chorus girl was charged with killing Caesar Young, the wealthy bookmaker. The police say that Yeandle today admitted "barging" the Patterson jury for a consideration of $500.

Arrested with Yeandle was Dagobert Timondoff, charged with being the man who conducted the negotiations for the attempted bribery. Rosenheimer's own attorney, James W. Osborne, told the story in chambers to Justice O'Gorman, presiding at the Rosenheimer trial.

At the instigation of District Attorney Whitman, Osborne continued the negotiations and when Yeandle was locked up the money in marked bills is said to have been found in his pocket. The statement that Yeandle "hung" the Nan Patterson jury will probably result in an investigation into that trial. According to the police, Timondoff, acting on behalf of Yeandle, visited Attorney Osborne, chief counsel for Rosenheimer and one of the leading criminal attorneys in America. The attorney declared Timondoff told him that Yeandle had stuck out for an acquittal in the Nan Patterson case until a mistrial was called. Nan Patterson was released after her second trial.

"Yeandle" hung that jury for $500 and he is willing to do the same for Rosenheimer," Timondoff is said to have told Osborne.

Today, acting on instructions from Osborne, Yeandle and Timondoff went to the corner of Madison avenue and 45th street. They were told the money would be paid them by Attorney George A. Knobloch, Osborne's associate. Detectives were concealed where they could see all that transpired. The two men appeared at 10.20, the appointed time, and the detectives say, accepted the marked bills. The detectives immediately arrested them and, upon search, found the $500 in Yeandle's pocket. After a brief hearing at the Tombs police court, the two men were remanded to the Tombs in default of $10,000 bail.

So The Hand of America in Political Game is Carefully Kept Guarded.

United Press Telegram.

HAVANA, Nov. 1.—Precautions were taken throughout the island to prevent trouble at the elections today as the result of the bitter campaign against the reelection of President Gomez and the split in the ranks of the controlling conservative party. The hand played in the election by the United States is now being kept closely guarded for fear that actions may raise the cry of intervention. The close watch which has been kept on conditions, however, is evidenced in the action of Minister Jackson in recalling General Rivas, chief of police of Havana, from a "diplomatic mission."

Jackson, it is thought, really intended to prevent the exile of Rivas, who is not altogether favorable to the Gomez faction of the Conservative party. It is said that the visit of Secretary of the Navy Meyer, who is now in Cuba, has been taken there by some as an indication of American activity.

The night before election passed without event which was due chiefly to a sudden downpour of rain. The situation in the rural districts is not so encouraging and the Rurales have been ordered out in large numbers.

CROPS IN TEXAS OF LOCAL PEOPLE.

Little Colony of Former Connellsville Folks at Brownsville

HAS BEEN PROSPEROUS

One and Next Season Promises Better Results—J. S. Duncan in Connellsville on Visit—Planting Fifty Acres in Cabbage.

J. S. Duncan is a visitor in Connellsville from Brownsville, Texas. Duncan is one of the Connellsville folks who took up their homes in Texas within the past couple of years. He came in Sunday evening and will return to the Southwest the latter part of this week or the first of next. Duncan is a former Connellsville boy and in a son-in-law of George B. Brown, with whom he is interested in a plantation of several hundred acres a few miles from Brownsville. The district the past season have been splendid, Duncan says. Cotton and sorghum yields have been big and the prices have been profitable. Cotton especially has been high. A few days ago in a single day there was a jump of $3.00 a bale in the price.

Within easy calling distance of the Brown-Duncan plantation James Russell, Sherman Tinschell and Harry Brown, all formerly of Connellsville, have purchased farms or ranches and have put in a busy and profitable season. Just at present all of them are planting from three to ten acres in cabbage and beans. Fifty acres of cabbage are being put in by Duncan. This crop will be harvested along in February.

While rain has been fairly plentiful, from a Texas standpoint, during the past few months, all of the crops about Brownsville are raised by irrigation. The water rights range from $1.00 to $10.00 an acre. Cabbage takes the highest water rent, $10, but for that sum as many crops as the land will yield can be raised in a year.

Besides being a good country for sorghum, cotton and vegetable raising, on a big scale the Texas country in which the Connellsville people have located is suitable for the raising of citrus fruits and oranges.

Basketball Players are Due in Town

Kummer isn't worrying over the optimistic reports emanating from Uniontown. Every team is a potential winner before the season starts.

Masquerade Dance.

Hallowe'en was marked by a round of social festivities last evening including dances, raffish pulls and other forms of amusement. The largest and most enjoyable function of the evening was a masquerade ball held at the Armory under the committee of Elmer Porter, Paul Bolger, Clyde Bryner and Alex Leisenring. The gay masquerade numbers over 150 represented many different characters and their makeup was so perfect that many were not recognized until after the unmasking took place. The costumes were very fantastic and the spacious hall with its Hallowe'en decorations presented a very attractive appearance. Tall stalks of corn, pumpkin faces and autumn leaves were lavishly used while the lights were covered with Japanese faces. Over the balcony was an excellent likeness of a moon and during several of the dances the Japanese lights were turned off and the hall was dimly lighted with spangled lights. Dancing commenced at 8:30 o'clock and was kept up until 2 o'clock this morning. The music by Kiefer's orchestra was fine and the floor was in good shape for dancing. About 11:30 o'clock the guests unmasked and refreshments consisting of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee were served.

The out of town guests present were Miss Helen Cody of Ripon, Wisconsin; Miss Jenn B. Snyder of New Castle, Miss Rebecca Montgomery and J. J. Spier of Danvers, F. R. ### HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Naylor's Hairdye.

THE GAS FIGHT BACK TO COUNCIL.

Scottdale Solons Will Wrestle With the Big Problem.

WAS SO DECIDED LAST EVENING

Davis and Mills' Evangelistic Tabernacle Will Be Opened Tonight—Big Game Hunters Return From Maine
Woods—Other Notes of News.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Nov. 1.—The Committee of Fifty and a large number of interested citizens gathered in pursuance to a call from Chairman M. L.
Hessup at the Borough building at 8 o'clock last evening and there was a free discussion of the status of the disagreement between the Borough
and the Fayette County Gas Company.
It was suggested in a letter from the attorneys, Morehead & Smith, and Smith & Snyder and C. E. Heller that the situation had somewhat changed since the bill in equity was filed. In the Westmoreland county courts against the gas company's proposed rate increase from 25 to 30 cents per thousand feet for gas that made it seem best that Town Council should deal with the gas company. The resolution passed by the company that they would abandon their franchise here and go around the town after shutting off the gas December 15 has been given standing by a recent decision of the Supreme Court, that a gas company may change the boundaries of its territory. The decision of the meeting was that Town Council take up the matter in behalf of the citizens. This was passed without a dissenting voice. The Council will deal with it either at a special meeting this week or at the regular meeting which is scheduled for next Monday evening.

Many Took Part.
A large number of Scottdale people went over to Connelville last evening to join the Young town's Hallowe'en demonstration and had a good time. The most notable demonstration was by the Fireman's Drum Corps who traveled in fantastic garb and had a lot of fun in the big procession. The West Penn. Anthracite Company had heavy business for the cars after 6 o'clock carrying the crowd
from here and other towns.

Tabernacle Completed.
The opening services at the evangelistic tabernacle will be held this evening and a great crowd is expected. The meeting last night at the Presbyterian Church was largely attended and the service was most interesting and helpful, the audience participating heartily in the singing and the opening prayers. Mr. Mills sang with excellent effect the solo,
"He Lifted Me." Evangelist Davis
gave a continuation of his exposition of the Scriptures on the subject of "True Believers and Mere Professors" and the audience received much light on the Scriptures presented in an interesting and interesting manner. The audience handed in a number of interesting questions which the evangelist answered in a clear and satisfactory manner. Among other things the evangelist said, "You can't work out your own salvation until God puts it in and He will never put it in until you accept Christ as your savior.
Information will not save anyone but regeneration will. I don't like the term backslider. Some recalled backsliders never slide ahead."

At the close of the meeting the audience formed in line and marched to the tabernacle where the necessities
were tasted and found to be excellent.
Mine Rescue Car.

Following the completion of a special course of instruction in the Arsenal station at Pittsburgh of the 30 men who will be connected with the mine rescue stations established by the recently created bureau of mines
the first of the specially designed cars will be in Scottdale on Saturday and Monday, November 5 and 7. The cars are the demonstrations there will be free illustrated lectures. All miners and others interested should be in attendance. Instruction will be given in first aid surgery and sanitation. The use of oxygen helmets in the deadly gases will be taught miners free of charge. The helmets are brought along and the car is completely fitted for rescue work. Should there be any mine accident while it is out the car will be dispatched to the scene of the disaster and will be given an actual trying out.

The rescue work is the first undertaken by this government, although foreign countries have been carrying this on for several years. The loss of life among foreign miners averages

one or two for every 1,000 men employed, while in this country the average is five for every 1,000.

Big Game Hunters.
Fred Moser, yardmaster at the "Y"
Scottdale, and W. Moser and J. D.
Moore of Youngwood arrived home
from Oakfield, Maine, on Sunday morning bringing some more game.
Fred Moser shipped home two large deer. C. H. Loucks sent another buck weighing about 200 pounds, while Moser had a buck weighing 125 pounds. Mr. Loucks and Harry Langhoy will remain another week at the place where they were, the most of the people there claim that Loucks and Langhoy will bring home game to the limit of the law. The weather was very cold where they were, and rain kept them in a couple of days.

sville, Friday, Nov. 4. Bargain prices,

Dr. W. H. Meyers, Veteran Physician, Dead at Meyersdale

Special to The Courier.

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Nov. 1.—Dr.
William Henry Meyers died at the family residence on Meyers avenue
last evening after a lingering illness of about five years. He was a son of the late Peter Meyers, founder of Meyersdale, and one of the best known men in Western Pennsylvania in his day. At an early age deceased entered the University of Pennsylvania and graduated with honors
from its medical and surgical department. He also graduated from the Jefferson Medical College. He was united in marriage to Miss Maggie Lange with whom he became acquainted while attending the Millersville
State Normal School. Immediately following their marriage they located at Meyers Mills (now Meyersdale)
where he practiced his profession with varying degrees of success for nearly a half century. When the railroad was completed from Connelsville to Cumberland he became a surgeon for the company and served in that capacity to within a few years of the time he ceased practicing. For a number of years he paid weekly visits to Pittsburgh where he enjoyed a re-creative practice of a special nature.

Deceased's faithful and loving wife
departed this life just three weeks ago and he is survived by four sons
and two daughters, as follows: Mrs.
Samuel G. Walker, Columbus, Ohio;
Mrs. William Jones, Charleston, W. V.;
Robert Meyers, Pittsburgh, Pa.;
Charles P. Meyers, William H. Meyers,
Jr., and John Simpson Meyers, all of Meyersdale. One sister, Miss Julia B. Meyers, and nephew, Dr. Charles
P. Lange, who for a number of years was associated in practice with his deceased uncle, both of Meyersdale,
also survive.

Dr. Meyers was a life-long member of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church and a charter member of Meyersdale Lodge, No. 554, Free and Accepted Masons, and also a member of the local tent of the Loyal Order. He was also a Republican of the loyal kind. Funeral services will be conducted at the late home of the deceased on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rt. Rev. Carlisle Whitehead, Bishop of the Episcopal Church, officiating.
The Masonic fraternity will have charge of the funeral. Interment in Union Contary.

BRAVES FLAMES To Save Her Little Daughter Who Was Fatally Burned.

FAYETTE CITY, Pa., Nov. 1.—Fire which destroyed three houses at Naomah, a mile from here last evening, fatally burned a 3 year old daughter of Thomas Gilmore, who, learning
her child was in the burning house,
rushed in to save her.

Nothing was saved at the Gilmore home, as none of the family except the child, was in the dwelling when the fire started. The families of David Sloan and Christ Morris, occupying the two other structures, saved most of their furniture. The loss is $6,500.

Record Sale of Cows.
Selling 20 cows in 10 minutes is the record Auctioneer C. M. Poe made on Saturday when he conducted a sale of cows for D. J. Johnson at the latter's dairy farm at Mt. Braddock. The prices ranged from $35 to $65 a cow.
The cows were dry and were sold to make room for fresh ones.

OWENSDALE.

OWENSDALE, Nov. 1.—The Young Workers Society of the United Brethren church will meet at the home of Mrs.
Alma Youngkin this evening.
More than a score from here and Morgan Station attended the evangelistic meetings at Scottdale last evening, and a similar crowd is making preparations to attend the meeting this evening. That people walk from Morgan Station to Meadow Mills, the terminus of the trolley line, a distance of two miles, shows just what interest is manifested in the meetings. The attendance of those who have been attending regularly has inspired others
to attend.

The people who have been so persistent in attending these meetings have greatly stirred the interest of the religiously inclined people all along the Morgan valley, and each evening
there is a new addition to this excellent band of workers.

urday evening.

Miss Helen Baldwin of Broad Ford

From out of the Stygian darkness burst a blood-curdling scream, followed by another in quick succession.
Surely some villainous deed was being perpetrated. Dry your eyes, dear reader. It's only a bunch of High School girls practicing their high school yell,
and such a yell: a mixture of a 10th finger, the Yale Kappa Delta and the Stonewall Jackson yell.

Harry K. Smith of Uniontown was attending to matters of business here yesterday.

Miss Stella Gerke was calling at Scottdale last evening.

An adjustable always shows the amount of oil in the font. It has a filler-cap which does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

WHEN A MAN MARRIES

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
AUTHOR OF "THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE"
"THE MAN IN LOWER TEN," ETC.

CHAPTER XII.

The Roof Garden.

"I was quite ill the next morning— from excitement, I suppose. Anyhow, I did not get up, and there wasn't any breakfast. Jim said he roused Flannigan at eight o'clock, to go down and get the dog started, and then went back to bed. But Flannigan did not get up. He appeared, sheepishly, at half-past ten, and by that time Della was down, in a towering rage, and had burned her hand and got the fire started, and had taken up a tray for Aunt Bella and herself.

As the others struggled down they belched themselves eggs or ate fruit, and nobody put anything away. Lollie Mercer made no noise, and as she reached the door, she brought it, about 11 o'clock.

"I never saw such a house," she declared. "A dozen housemaids couldn't put it in order. Why should every man that smokes drop ashes wherever he happens to be?"

"That's the question of the ages," I replied languidly. "What was Max talking so horribly about a little while ago?" Lollie looked up at me.

"About nothing at all," she declared. "Anne told me to clean the bathtub with oil, and I did it, that's all. Now Max says he couldn't get it off, and his clothes stick to him, and if he should forget and strike a match in the—in the usual way, he would explode. He can clean his own tub tomorrow, she finished vindictively.

At noon Jim came to see me, bringing Anne and a concession to Della. He was in a rage, and he carried the morning paper like a club in his hand.

"What sort of a newspaper do you call this?" he demanded irritably. "It makes me crazy; everybody with a mental tinge of me leaning over the parapet of the roof, waving a bomb with the rest of you sitting on my legs to keep me from overbalancing."

"Maybe there's a picture!" Anne said hopefully.

Jim looked.

"No picture," he announced. "I wonder why they restrained themselves! I wish Della would keep off the roof." He added, with fresh access of rage, "or wear a mask or veil. One of those fellows is going to recognize her, and there'll be the end of it."

"When you are all through discussing this thing, perhaps you will tell me what is the matter," I remarked, from my couch. "Why did you lean over the parapet, Jim, and who sat on your legs?"

"I didn't; nobody did," he retorted, waving the newspaper. "It's a lot cut out of the whole cloth, that's what it is. I asked you girls to be decent to these reporters. It never pays to offend a newspaper man. Listen to this, Kit."

He read the article rapidly, furiously, pausing every now and then to make an exasperated comment.

THE ROOF GARDEN.

"Special Officer McCloud, on duty at the quarantined house of James Wilson, artist and clubman, on Ninety-fifth street, reported this morning a daring attempt at escape, made at 3 A. M. It is in this house that some eight or nine members of the smart set were imprisoned during the course of a dinner party, when the Japanese butler developed snailpox. The party shut in the house includes Miss Katherine McNair, the daughter of Theodore McNair of the later-Ocean system; Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Brown, the Misses Mercer, Maxwell Reed, the well-known clubman and whip, and a Mr. Thomas Harbison, guest of the Dallas Browns and a South American.

"Officer McCloud's story, told to a Chronicle reporter this morning, is as follows: The occupants of the house had been uneasy all day. From the air of subdued bustle, and from a careful inspection of the roof, made by the entire party during the afternoon, his suspicion had been aroused. Nothing unusual, however, occurred during the early part of the night. From eight o'clock to twelve McCloud was relieved from duty, his place being taken by Michael Shane of the Eighty-sixth street station.

"When McCloud came on duty at midnight, Shane reported that about 11 o'clock the searchlight of a steamer on the river, flashing over the house, had shown a man crouching on the parapet, evidently surveying the roof across, which at this point is only 12 feet distant, with a view of making his escape. On seeing Shane below, however, he had beat a retreat, but 'before the officer had seen him distinctly. He was dressed in evening clothes and wore a light tan overcoat.

"Officer McCloud relieved Shane at midnight, and sent for a plain-clothes man from the station house. This man was stationed on the roof of the Huntington residence next door, with strict injunctions to prevent an escape from the quarantined apartment. Nothing suspicious having occurred, the man on the roof left about 3 A. M., reporting to McCloud below that everything was quiet. At that moment, glancing skyward, one of the officers was astounded to see a long narrow board project itself from the coping of the Wilson house, waver uncertainly for a moment, and then advance stealthily toward the parapet across. When it was within a foot or two of a resting place, McCloud called sharply to the invisible refugee above, at the same time firing his revolver in the ground.

"The result was surprising. The board stopped, trembled, swayed a little, and dropped, missing the vigilant officer by a hair's breadth, and crashing to the cement with a terrific force. An inspection of the roof from the Huntington house, later, revealed nothing unusual. It is evident, however, that the quarantine is proving irksome to the inhabitants of the sequestered residence, most of whom are typical society folk, without resources in themselves. Their condition, without doubt, is certainly pitiable. It has been rumored that the ladies are doing their own hair, and that the gentlemen have been reduced to putting their own buttons in their shirts. This deplorable situation, however, is unavoidable.

"The vigilance of the board of health has been most commendable in this case. Beginning with a waker over the telephone, they would break quarantine in 24 hours, and ending with the attempt to span a 12-foot gulf with a board, over which to cross to freedom, these shut-in society folk have shown characteristic disregard of the laws of the state. It is quite time to extend to the millionaire the same strictness that keeps the commuter at home for three weeks with the measles; that makes him get the little bottles and groceries from the gate-keeper and small like dog-snap for a month afterward, as a result of disinfection."

We sat in dead silence for a minute. Then:

"Perhaps it is true," I said. "Not of you, Jim—but some one may have tried to get out that way. In fact, I think it extremely likely."

"Who? Flannigan?" You couldn't drive him out. He's having the time of his life. Do you suspect me?"

"Come away and don't fight," Anne broke in pacifically. "You will have to have luncheon sent in, Jimmy; nobody has ordered anything from the shops, and I feel like old Mother Hubbard."

"I wish you would all go out," I said wearily. "If every one in the house were to try to get over to the roof last night, well and good. But you might look and see if the board is still lying where it fell."

"There was an instantaneous rush for the window, and a second's pause. Then Jimmy's voice, incredulous, asked:

"Well, I'll be—blessed! There's the board!"

I stayed in my room all that day. My head ached and then, too, I did not care to meet Mr. Harbison. It would have to come. I realized that a meeting was inevitable, but I wanted time to think how I would meet him. It would be impossible to cut him, without rousing the curiosity of the others to fever pitch; and it was equally impossible to ignore the disgraceful episode on the stairs. As it happened, however, I need not have worried. I went down to dinner, languidly, when every one was seated, and found Max at my right, and Mr. Harbison moved over beside Della. Every one was talking at once, for Flannigan, ambulating around the table as niftily as he walked his beat, had presented Della with her bracelet on a salad plate, garnished with romaine. He had found it in the furnace room, he said, where she must have dropped it. And he looked at me stealthily, to approve his readiness!

Every one was fascinated, and as they ate they discussed the board in the one way, and pretended to decide it as a clever bit of prose work, to revive a dying sensation. No one was deceived: Anne's pearls and the attempt at escape, coming just after, pointed only to one thing. I looked around the table, dazed. Flannigan, almost the only unknown quantity, might have tried to escape the night before, but he would not have been in dress clothes. Besides, he must be eliminated as far as the points were concerned, having been locked in the furnace room the night they were stolen. There was no one among the girls to suspect. The Mercer girls had stunning pearls, and could secure all they wanted legitimately; and Della disliked them. Oh, there was no question about it, I decided: Dallas and Anne had taken a wolf to their bosom—or is it a viper?—and the Harbison man was the creature. Although I must say that, looking over the table, at Jimmy's breadth and not very supposing personality, at Max's long length, yellow skin and bold dark eyes, at Della, blond, growing bald and ferid, and then at the Harbison girl, tall, muscular, clear-eyed and unburned, one would have taken Max at first choice as the villain, with Dal next, Jim third, and the Harbison boy not in the running.

It was just after dinner that the surprise was sprung on me. Mr. Harbison came around to me, gravely and asked me if I felt able to go up on the roof. On the roof, after last night, I had to gather myself together; luckily, the others were pushing back their chairs, showing Flannigan the liquor glasses to take up, and lighting cigars.

"I do not care to go," I said feebly. "The others are coming," he persisted, "and I—I could give you an arm up the stairs."

"I believe you are good at that," I said, looking at him steadily. "Max, will you help me to the roof?"

Mr. Harbison really turned rather white. Then he bowed ceremoniously and left me.

Max got into a wrap, and every one except Mr. Harbison and Della, who was taking a mass of lachrymatics to Aunt Bella, went to the roof.

"Where is Tom?" Anne asked, as we reached the foot of the stairs. "Gone ahead to see things," was the answer. But he was not there. At the top of the last flight I stopped, dumb with amazement; the roof had been transformed, enchanted. It was a fairy-land of lights and foliage and colors. I had to stop and rub my eyes. From the blueness of a tin roof in February to the brightness and greenery of a July roof garden!

"You were the immediate inspiration," Della said. "Harbison thought your headache might come from lack of exercise and fresh air, and he has worked us like niggers all day. I've a blister on my right palm, and Harbison got shocked while he was wiping the place, and nearly fell over the parapet. We bought out two full-sized florists by telephone."

It was the most amazing transformation. At each corner a pole had been erected, and wire crossed the roof diagonally, hung with red and amber bulbs. Around the chimneys had been massed evergreen trees in tubs, hiding their brick-and-mortar ugliness, and among the trees tiny lights were strung. Along the parapet were rows of geometrical boxwood plants in bright red crocks, and the tops of a crimson and white tent had been thrown open, showing lights within, and rugs, wicker chairs, and cushions.

Max raised a glass of benedictine and posed for a moment, melodramatically.

"To the Wilson roof garden!" he said. "To Kit, who inspired; to the creators, who perspired; and to Takahiro—may he not have expired?"

Every one was very gay; I think the knowledge that tomorrow Aunt Bella might be with them urged them to make the most of this night of freedom. I tried to be jolly, and succeeded in being feverish. Mr. Harbison did not come up to enjoy what he had wrought. Jim brought up his guitar and sang love songs in a beautiful tenor, looking at Della all the time. And Della sat in a stunner chair, with a rug over her and a spangled veil on her head, looking at the hosts on the river—about as soft and as chastened as an acetylene head light.

And after Max had told the most improbable tale, which Della advised him to sprinkle salt on, and Dallas had done a clog dance, Della said it was time for her complexion sleep and went downstairs, and broke up the party.

She only gave half as much care to her innermost soul. Anne said when she had gone, "I am done to her skin, she would kill that nice Harbison boy alone. She must have been brutal to him tonight, for he went to bed at nine o'clock. At least, I suppose he went to bed, for he shut himself in the studio, and when I knocked he advised me not to come in."

WORKING WOMEN

Here is a Helping Hand—A Newton Woman's Experience.

You know just how it is yourself—when you are tired out, perhaps a little run-down and, hardly able to drag around, like a burden, you are irritable, nervous, depressed and every little task seems like a mountain.

Miss Katharine Burns of Newton, Mass., says: "About six months ago I was in a run-down condition and my blood was very poor. I had taken several medicines prescribed by physicians, but they seemed to do me no good. Finally Vinol was recommended, and from the first bottle I noticed a great improvement. I have taken six bottles and I feel as well as ever, and I would recommend Vinol to anybody needing a good tonic to build them up and make them strong." (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

We want to ask every woman who finds herself in this condition to try Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil, with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not help them.

We know Vinol will create an appetite, aid digestion, make pure, rich blood, and in this way build up and strengthen the run-down, overworked, nervous system. You take no chances. Try it. Graham & Company, Drugists, Conneltsville, Pa.

GREEN ROOM CHAT.

"The Squaw Man." William Faversham, one of the most deservedly popular dramatic stars, scored his most notable success a season or two ago when he first presented Edwin Milton Royle's classic western play, "The Squaw Man" at Wallack's theatre in New York. It proved to be one of the most genuine theatrical triumphs of the past decade both from a literary and financial viewpoint. The success of New York was repeated in every large city of the United States and then a production was made in London where it was an instantaneous hit, due possibly to the excellent blending of the English and American atmospheres which pervades the piece. It is little wonder, then, that the local management announced the presentation of "The Squaw Man" at the Soloson on next Friday, Nov. 4 with a special matinee with some feeling of pride at having been able to secure an attraction of this importance.

A Scene from "The Squaw Man."

Particular emphasis is made of the fact that popular prices of admission will prevail for the engagement in the city.

The production will be replete with beautiful scenery painted by Ernest Albert and the change of locale from the English home to the Arizona Desert affords opportunity for a wide range of elaborate costuming which has not been overlooked. There are over 30 characters in the play and all in all it is a production which will warrant the attention of every real lover of the better class of American drama in this city.

GOULD INTERESTS SUE

Action Brought by Colonial Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

New York, Nov. 1.—A suit against the Gould interests in the Wabash has been brought in the federal court in New York and another is to come up in a few days in Pittsburgh.

The former action is brought by the Colonial Trust company of Pittsburgh against the Central Trust company and members of its bondholders' committee for the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal railway.

In the suit brought in New York the complaint charges that when the Wheeling and Lake Erie control was acquired and when terminals were built in Pittsburgh the first mortgage bondholders of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal were led to believe that they were receiving a guaranty by the Wabash railroad on their bonds in the form of the supplementary traffic agreement of 1904, by which 25 per cent of the earnings on the traffic of the three roads was to be used for payment of interest.

It charges further that Gould interests arranged the receivership of the Wheeling and Lake Erie and the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal to get rid of the bond guaranty.

SAVE NEBRASKA FROM D. T.

Is Bryan's Plan in Speech to Voters. Flays Dahlgren.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 1.—Declaring that he did not wish to see the Democratic party of Nebraska die of delirium tremens, Mr. Bryan told an audience of Lincolnites to vote against James C. Dahlgren, Democratic candidate for governor.

He said that Mr. Dahlgren had no moral claim upon Democratic support because he owed his nomination to the invasion of the Democratic primary by thousands of Republicans; that, in addition, he had refused to stand upon the party platform declarations on the liquor question, but was being supported by whom he was being supported. He declared it to be necessary to defeat Dahlgren in order to end the spree the party here was embarked upon.

WORLD'S RECORD BY JOHNSTONE.

American Aviator Reaches
Altitude of 9,714
Feet.

Wright Flyer on the Last Day of Tournament Makes Most Wonderful
Climb—Does the Trick in Machine
in Which He Had Never Flown.

New York, Nov. 1.—Ralph Johnstone of Kansas City, who used to ride a high wheel bicycle down a long flight of steps at the hippodrome in earlier days, but who has been flying a Wright biplane for the Wright brothers since the late spring, brought the international aviation meet at Belmont park to a close by breaking the world's record for aeroplane altitude. Johnstone climbed to a height of 9,714 feet, or 328 feet higher than an aeroplane ever has been sailed before.

Previous to this the record for altitude in an aeroplane was 9,186 feet, made at Mourmelon Le Grand, France, two months ago by Henri Wymalen, a Dutch flier.

In the Air One Hour and a Half. Johnstone was in the air about one hour and a half, but all except the last few hundred feet of Johnstone's climb was made during his first hour in the air.

For the first time in the history of aviation America saw an aeroplane absolutely disappear from view in a cloudless sky. Johnstone made the climb straight up of more than a mile and three-quarters in a machine which he not only had never flown before, but of a type radically different in speed, surface area and volplaning characteristics from any aeroplane Johnstone had ever before driven.

Drexel Tries But Fails.

While Johnstone was lost to view in the clear blue of the autumn sky over the center of the field, J. Armstrong Drexel climbed into the air in a monoplane, a 50-horsepower Blériot, to take the grand altitude of the meet away from Johnstone.

Drexel ascended more than a mile and a half, but when he had reached a height of 5,373 feet an attack of sickness and the extreme cold told Drexel he had enough and he came down.

Graham-White's Narrow Escape.

Graham-White came perilously near serious injury when his big racing Blériot monoplane whirled over him in a complete somersault during a speedy landing at the finish of his last race.

The aviator jumped briskly to his feet after the body of his machine had been raised from him and the spectators, who had expected to see the man lifted into the waiting ambulance, saw instead a cool young fellow flicking the dust from his aviation costume with a careful hand.

Going at 30 Miles an Hour.

Graham-White was making not less than thirty miles an hour when he dropped at an acute angle from fifty feet to the earth just to the right and behind the score board. The spectators saw a great splutter of wood jump from the wood and fly high above the head of the aviator. That was part of the propeller blade which had received the impact instead of the wheels of the chassis.

Up the monoplane jumped in a crazy bound, fully eighty-five feet, then down it came. Graham-White's head could be seen to rock at the second bounding, and the rudder planes quivered. Again the big bird ricocheted off the ground.

Somersault Instantaneous.

The Blériot came down on the third bound and just as the wheels touched the ground the great tail began to rise in a swinging arc. The somersault was almost instantaneous.

Many men ran from each side of the field. Those who arrived first, and they got there in less than a minute, gripped the framework of the skeleton tall and lifted it up. The aviator sprouted up instantly. He stood by the side of his overturned machine and slapped himself soundly on the chest and thighs, then he began to brush the dirt off his clothes.

"Oh, nothing wrong, you know," was the way Graham-White greeted those who had come to life an unconscious man on a stretcher.

"Just a Bit of a Tumble."

"Just a bit of a tumble—going a trifle too fast, you see. Ah, there's the ambulance. That's odd, now, isn't it, an ambulance coming for me. That's very odd, now isn't it?"

A few minutes later he did ride to the hospital. In one of the official autos, but it was only to have the doctor wash and dress a small cut which he had received on one knee when he was thrown from his seat.

Aside from the broken propeller the Blériot escaped serious injury.

Graham-White issued a formal challenge to Moissan to a speed contest from Belmont park around the
